

GIRL BIGAMIST TALKS SUICIDE

After Night in Long Island City Jail She Declared She Would Kill Herself Sooner Than Remain in a Cell.

ROCHE, HUSBAND NO. 2,
HUSTLES TO FIND BAIL.

Defense on Trial Will Be that She Was Hypnotized and Forced Into Her First Marriage at Pistol Point.

Margaret Famliton, the girl bigamist, of Whitestone, L. I., was arraigned this afternoon before Magistrate Healy in the Flushing Police Court. She was indicted yesterday by the Queens County Grand Jury and later arrested in her home and taken to the County Jail in Long Island City, where she spent the night.

She was accompanied to court to-day only by her father and the detective sergeant in whose custody she was. Not even her counsel was present to plead for her. She had spent the night in jail weeping and shrinking from the taunts of several women cell mates accused of grave crimes. She was utterly exhausted from weeping when arraigned before Magistrate Healy. She almost went down on her knees to the Court, begging that she be not sent back to a cell. She declared sobbingly that she would commit suicide rather than suffer the terrible humiliation of imprisonment again.

Neither Bridegroom in Court.

Neither Frederick Kirkman, the eighteen-year-old boy who married the girl last Sunday, nor Edward Roche, the young medical student who was wedded to her on the following day, were in court. Young Roche, it was learned, was making frantic efforts to secure a bondsman. In response to the plea of Mr. Famliton, Magistrate Healy reduced the bail fixed last night from $1,000 to $500. Mr. Famliton, however, was unable to even furnish that sum. He declared that he would secure a bondsman to-morrow and prayed that his daughter be paroled in his custody.

"If she is placed in a cell again I fear that her mind will give way," said the father. Magistrate Healy granted the request and the young woman was paroled until to-morrow, when she will be arraigned for a formal pleading.

It was reported last night that the commitment papers upon which this strange young woman was imprisoned were irregular and therefore the action of the Queens County Jail was liable to a suit for heavy damages for making her a prisoner. The irregularity consisted in the fact that the papers were not signed. The District Attorney explained to-day, however, that as long as the young woman was charged with the commission of a felony it made no difference whether the papers were signed or not.

Husband No. 2 Hunts Bail.

When the warrant for the girl bigamist was issued last night her bail was fixed at $1,000. Her father and Edward Roche, the young medical student, to whom Miss Famliton was married the day after she became the bride of Frederick Kirkman, endeavored early to-day to secure bail as soon as the arraignment proceedings came up in Magistrate Healy's court, but failed. Roche is the son of a wealthy manufacturer of Cincinnati. He was a student at Fordham College for some time, but withdrew before graduating in order to study medicine. He is now attached to the hospital corps at Willet's Point. He is still ardently in love with the young woman and declares that he will do everything in his power to make their marriage contract binding and have the earlier contract by which she bound herself for life to Kirkman set aside.

Under the law Kirkman, who is but an eighteen-year-old boy, is the legal husband. The marriage ceremony by which the double bride became Mrs. Roche has no force in the law except to act as a lever to criminal proceedings for bigamy.

To Be Tried for Bigamy.

The young woman will be tried for bigamy at the next term of the Queens County Court, which begins on Nov. 2. Her defense will be that she was forced into marriage with Kirkman by threats of a revolver and through hypnotic influence.

She will have to prove these facts in the face of a declaration by the Rev. Dr. Thorpe, who married her to Kirkman last Sunday. Dr. Thorpe says that there was no evidence that the girl was being forced into the marriage by threats or by any other influence which the could not have readily combated. Kirkman asserts he made no such threats and ridicules the idea that he possessed of any hypnotic powers.

The jury who tries the girl for bigamy, for which she could be sent to State prison, will listen to an abundance of testimony, however, to show that she was possessed of a peculiarly romantic temperament and was a victim of extraordinary impulses. District Attorney Greess, who has charge of the prosecution, has a deep suspicion of the girl's slight. Though he will present no vigorous endeavor to prove her conviction, he says that he does not believe a jury would convict her.

After the criminal proceedings have concluded steps will be taken to bring civil courts to annul both marriages. It is likely that Miss Famliton will be remarried to Roche who has been loyal to her through the ordeal, however, who is bitter toward his bride, will do everything in his power to obstruct her marriage to Roche.

DELAY FOR MRS. JOHNSTON.

Woman Who Confessed Stealing $50,000 Gets Week's Delay.

Mrs. Marie Layton Johnston, who pleaded guilty to stealing over $50,000 from the United States Playing Card Company, of Cincinnati, was not sentenced today. Judge Pendergast, in General Sessions, granting a postponement of a week at the request of the defendant's attorneys.

MARGARET FAMILTON, WHO IS IN JAIL BECAUSE SHE IS AT ONCE MRS. KIRKMAN AND MRS. ROCHE.

WIDOW WINS, THEN LOSES SAME SUIT

Jury Awards Old-Time Pedestrian's Wife Damages, but Verdict Is Set Aside as Being Contrary to the Evidence.

The widow of George Du Frane, the old six-day heel-and-toe pedestrian, who competed with Rowell, O'Leary and Weston twenty odd years ago, won then lost a suit for damages against the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, day after she became the bride of Frederick Kirkman, endeavored early to-day to secure bail as soon as the arraignment proceedings came up in Magistrate Healy's court, but failed.

Young Roche is the son of a wealthy manufacturer of Cincinnati. He was a student at Fordham College for some time, but withdrew before graduating in order to study medicine. He is now attached to the hospital corps at Willet's Point. He is still ardently in love with the young woman and declares that he will do everything in his power to make their marriage contract binding and have the earlier contract by which she bound herself for life to Kirkman set aside.

Under the law Kirkman, who is but an eighteen-year-old boy, is the legal husband. The marriage ceremony by which the double bride became Mrs. Roche has no force in the law except to act as a lever to criminal proceedings for bigamy.

She will have to prove these facts in the face of a declaration by the Rev. Dr. Thorpe, who married her to Kirkman last Sunday. Dr. Thorpe says that there was no evidence that the girl was being forced into the marriage by threats or by any other influence which the could not have readily combated. Kirkman asserts he made no such threats and ridicules the idea that he possessed of any hypnotic powers.

The jury who tries the girl for bigamy, for which she could be sent to State prison, will listen to an abundance of testimony, however, to show that she was possessed of a peculiarly romantic temperament and was a victim of extraordinary impulses. District Attorney Greess, who has charge of the prosecution, has a deep suspicion of the girl's slight. Though he will present no vigorous endeavor to prove her conviction, he says that he does not believe a jury would convict her.

After the criminal proceedings have concluded steps will be taken to bring civil courts to annul both marriages. It is likely that Miss Famliton will be remarried to Roche who has been loyal to her through the ordeal, however, who is bitter toward his bride, will do everything in his power to obstruct her marriage to Roche.

DRIVER FAINTS AS CART CRUSHES BOY

Edward Wilders Is Unable to Stop His Team When Seven-Year-Old Lad Falls Under the Wheels.

Crushed by falling under a heavy meat wagon at One Hundred and Twenty-fourth street and First avenue to-day, David Curley, the seven-year-old son of a fireman, of No. 34 East One Hundred and Twenty-fourth street, was injured so badly that he died a few hours later in the Harlem Hospital.

Edward Wilders, of No. 256 Old Broadway, who was driving the vehicle, tried with all his strength to pull up his horses, but could not. As he felt the wagon wheel go over the child's body he fainted. He had to be taken from his seat into a drug store before consciousness could be restored.

When the teamster came to himself he raved and frantically tore his hair. "If didn't mean to do it," he cried. "I couldn't help it. I worked all last night I haven't had any sleep. I was worn out and I couldn't stop the horses."

When Wilders was taken into the Harlem Court to be arraigned he was so unsteady that two policemen had to support him. He is a big, strong fellow who can lift a number of beef with as

GREAT M'CLOSKEY CHASE THRILLED ALL NEWARK.

Begins as a Drama of Lurid Hue and Has the Strongest Kind of a Comedy Ending.

THE GREAT M'CLOSKEY CASE. A Comedy Drama in Three Acts. CAST OF CHARACTERS. The heavy villain Mrs. McCloskey. The suffering wife Thomas McCormack. Mr. D. B. McCarty. Police, hospital physicians, etc.

Scene—The McCloskey home, Washington street, Brooklyn. Time, two months ago. An curtain rises. Mrs. McCloskey is discovered, sitting cold bandages on McCloskey's head.

Mrs. McCloskey—This is the finish. I've told you before I would leave if you did not stop drinking. This is the last old wet bandage I will put on your throbbing brow. I am going home to pack my things. (German band outside the house.) "Leave My Happy Home for You!"

Scene—Home of Thomas McCormack, 67 No. 68 Summer avenue, Newark. Time—The present. Mrs. McCormack is discovered at the door of the house.

Mrs. McCormack (reading note)—"Dear wife: I have just returned from Philadelphia and have stopped drinking. Will you come back to me?" Go back to him? Not if I know it. As I live, there he comes now. (McCloskey is seen turning the corner and approaching the house. His gait is slightly waddlesome.)

Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey?

Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey?

Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey?

Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey?

Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey?

Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey?

Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey?

Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey?

Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey?

Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey?

Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey?

Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey?

Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey?

Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey?

Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey?

Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey?

Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey?

Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey?

Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey?

Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey?

Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey?

Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey?

Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey?

Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey?

Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey? With Mrs. McCormack—Will you come home with me, Mrs. McCloskey?

CADET VICTIMS MADE TO ROB

Experience of Pretty Julia Ungerheuer Proves that Young Girls Are Induced to Steal from Their Employers.

MAN ACCUSED OF ABUSING HER GOES FREE.

Girl Herself, Together with Friend Who Located Her Place of Imprisonment, Is Spirited Away from the City.

All hope has been given up by the police of punishing the man who lured pretty, sixteen-year-old Julia Ungerheuer away from her place of employment and kept her prisoner in a basement at No. 23 Second street.

Adam Levinsky, the man who was accused by Julia and her girl friend, Anna Weinzebeck, was acquitted in Yorkville Court because neither of the girls were on hand to testify against him. They had been spirited away, taken to some other State, and Levinsky walked from court happy and smiling, a free man.

The experience of these two sixteen-year-old Russian girls proves two things. First, that the infamous "cadet" system is not dead in New York, and second, that the "cadets" have added robbery to their other ways of getting money and are responsible for many of the recent mysterious robberies that have puzzled the police.

Would Protect Her Friend.

Two months ago the two girls came to this country from Russia. Anna was picked up at the Barge Office by one of the "cadets" and soon was leading a life that was anything but honest. Had herself, she determined to protect Julia. Her own experienced had cost her dear. Her friend should not suffer as she had suffered.

When Julia disappeared, J. Ellner, a druggist, of No. 103 Stanton street, asked the police to find her. He had engaged this fresh, rosy-cheeked Russian girl to care for his children. Ellner knew she had no friends and few acquaintances in America and he feared for her safety. He had read of the "cadet system."

Search as the police would they could get no trace of this girl. When the police failed Anna became a girl and day she was seen on the street. She was looking for Levinsky, whom she had known. She came upon him at last going to his home in the early morning. She saw him enter the house and she followed him.

When the police failed Anna became a girl and day she was seen on the street. She was looking for Levinsky, whom she had known. She came upon him at last going to his home in the early morning. She saw him enter the house and she followed him.

When the police failed Anna became a girl and day she was seen on the street. She was looking for Levinsky, whom she had known. She came upon him at last going to his home in the early morning. She saw him enter the house and she followed him.

When the police failed Anna became a girl and day she was seen on the street. She was looking for Levinsky, whom she had known. She came upon him at last going to his home in the early morning. She saw him enter the house and she followed him.

When the police failed Anna became a girl and day she was seen on the street. She was looking for Levinsky, whom she had known. She came upon him at last going to his home in the early morning. She saw him enter the house and she followed him.

When the police failed Anna became a girl and day she was seen on the street. She was looking for Levinsky, whom she had known. She came upon him at last going to his home in the early morning. She saw him enter the house and she followed him.

When the police failed Anna became a girl and day she was seen on the street. She was looking for Levinsky, whom she had known. She came upon him at last going to his home in the early morning. She saw him enter the house and she followed him.

When the police failed Anna became a girl and day she was seen on the street. She was looking for Levinsky, whom she had known. She came upon him at last going to his home in the early morning. She saw him enter the house and she followed him.

When the police failed Anna became a girl and day she was seen on the street. She was looking for Levinsky, whom she had known. She came upon him at last going to his home in the early morning. She saw him enter the house and she followed him.

When the police failed Anna became a girl and day she was seen on the street. She was looking for Levinsky, whom she had known. She came upon him at last going to his home in the early morning. She saw him enter the house and she followed him.

When the police failed Anna became a girl and day she was seen on the street. She was looking for Levinsky, whom she had known. She came upon him at last going to his home in the early morning. She saw him enter the house and she followed him.

When the police failed Anna became a girl and day she was seen on the street. She was looking for Levinsky, whom she had known. She came upon him at last going to his home in the early morning. She saw him enter the house and she followed him.

When the police failed Anna became a girl and day she was seen on the street. She was looking for Levinsky, whom she had known. She came upon him at last going to his home in the early morning. She saw him enter the house and she followed him.

When the police failed Anna became a girl and day she was seen on the street. She was looking for Levinsky, whom she had known. She came upon him at last going to his home in the early morning. She saw him enter the house and she followed him.

JULIA UNGERHEUR AND ANNA WEINZEBUECK, TWO VICTIMS OF CADETS SPIRITED AWAY

Fedora hat. I had the greatest difficulty in keeping her from going with the man.

"I noticed also that men met her on the street and tried to talk to her. Twice I found strange women in my house when my wife and I came home. These women were the dupes of the men who held Julia up on the street, and their sole idea was to get her to rob my house. Of this I am convinced. I have looked into this thing carefully, and my candid opinion is that they were trying to get the girl to become one of them and then to make a thief of her."

Wanted Her to Kidnap.

"They tried to make her kidnap my children," interrupted Mrs. Ellner. "I am sure this was their object. Twice I had reason to believe that the men on the street talking to Julia, and they were trying to make her go away with them."

When these facts were told to Police Captain McDermott, of the Fifth street station, it was a surprise to the police commander.

"I really am surprised at the telegrams," he said. "I have often wondered how these girls were got from their homes. This telegram explains it. I believe these cadets will resort to any practice to make a living without working. What Mr. Ellner says convinces me that now that their traffic in innocent girls, and even children, is prevented, they are making thieves of those girls and are brooding by the thinking. I believe the cadet system is nearly ended, and if I can keep my health I soon will be ended here. These cadets will be where they belong—behind prison bars."

"I have reason to believe that the men on the street talking to Julia, and they were trying to make her go away with them."

When these facts were told to Police Captain McDermott, of the Fifth street station, it was a surprise to the police commander.

"I really am surprised at the telegrams," he said. "I have often wondered how these girls were got from their homes. This telegram explains it. I believe these cadets will resort to any practice to make a living without working. What Mr. Ellner says convinces me that now that their traffic in innocent girls, and even children, is prevented, they are making thieves of those girls and are brooding by the thinking. I believe the cadet system is nearly ended, and if I can keep my health I soon will be ended here. These cadets will be where they belong—behind prison bars."

"I have reason to believe that the men on the street talking to Julia, and they were trying to make her go away with them."

When these facts were told to Police Captain McDermott, of the Fifth street station, it was a surprise to the police commander.

"I really am surprised at the telegrams," he said. "I have often wondered how these girls were got from their homes. This telegram explains it. I believe these cadets will resort to any practice to make a living without working. What Mr. Ellner says convinces me that now that their traffic in innocent girls, and even children, is prevented, they are making thieves of those girls and are brooding by the thinking. I believe the cadet system is nearly ended, and if I can keep my health I soon will be ended here. These cadets will be where they belong—behind prison bars."

"I have reason to believe that the men on the street talking to Julia, and they were trying to make her go away with them."

When these facts were told to Police Captain McDermott, of the Fifth street station, it was a surprise to the police commander.

"I really am surprised at the telegrams," he said. "I have often wondered how these girls were got from their homes. This telegram explains it. I believe these cadets will resort to any practice to make a living without working. What Mr. Ellner says convinces me that now that their traffic in innocent girls, and even children, is prevented, they are making thieves of those girls and are brooding by the thinking. I believe the cadet system is nearly ended, and if I can keep my health I soon will be ended here. These cadets will be where they belong—behind prison bars."

"I have reason to believe that the men on the street talking to Julia, and they were trying to make her go away with them."

When these facts were told to Police Captain McDermott, of the Fifth street station, it was a surprise to the police commander.

"I really am surprised at the telegrams," he said. "I have often wondered how these girls were got from their homes. This telegram explains it. I believe these cadets will resort to any practice to make a living without working. What Mr. Ellner says convinces me that now that their traffic in innocent girls, and even children, is prevented, they are making thieves of those girls and are brooding by the thinking. I believe the cadet system is nearly ended, and if I can keep my health I soon will be ended here. These cadets will be where they belong—behind prison bars."

"I have reason to believe that the men on the street talking to Julia, and they were trying to make her go away with them."

When these facts were told to Police Captain McDermott, of the Fifth street station, it was a surprise to the police commander.

"I really am surprised at the telegrams," he said. "I have often wondered how these girls were got from their homes. This telegram explains it. I believe these cadets will resort to any practice to make a living without working. What Mr. Ellner says convinces me that now that their traffic in innocent girls, and even children, is prevented, they are making thieves of those girls and are brooding by the thinking. I believe the cadet system is nearly ended, and if I can keep my health I soon will be ended here. These cadets will be where they belong—behind prison bars."

"I have reason to believe that the men on the street talking to Julia, and they were trying to make her go away with them."

When these facts were told to Police Captain McDermott, of the Fifth street station, it was a surprise to the police commander.

"I really am surprised at the telegrams," he said. "I have often wondered how these girls were got from their homes. This telegram explains it. I believe these cadets will resort to any practice to make a living without working. What Mr. Ellner says convinces me that now that their traffic in innocent girls, and even children, is prevented, they are making thieves of those girls and are brooding by the thinking. I believe the cadet system is nearly ended, and if I can keep my health I soon will be ended here. These cadets will be where they belong—behind prison bars."

"I have reason to believe that the men on the street talking to Julia, and they were trying to make her go away with them."

When these facts were told to Police Captain McDermott, of the Fifth street station, it was a surprise to the police commander.

"I really am surprised at the telegrams," he said. "I have often wondered how these girls were got from their homes. This telegram explains it. I believe these cadets will resort to any practice to make a living without working. What Mr. Ellner says convinces me that now that their traffic in innocent girls, and even children, is prevented, they are making thieves of those girls and are brooding by the thinking. I believe the cadet system is nearly ended, and if I can keep my health I soon will be ended here. These cadets will be where they belong—behind prison bars."

"I have reason to believe that the men on the street talking to Julia, and they were trying to make her go away with them."

When these facts were told to Police Captain McDermott, of the Fifth street station, it was a surprise to the police commander.

"I really am surprised at the telegrams," he said. "I have often wondered how these girls were got from their homes. This telegram explains it. I believe these cadets will resort to any practice to make a living without working. What Mr. Ellner says convinces me that now that their traffic in innocent girls, and even children, is prevented, they are making thieves of those girls and are brooding by the thinking. I believe the cadet system is nearly ended, and if I can keep my health I soon will be ended here. These cadets will be where they belong—behind prison bars."

"I have reason to believe that the men on the street talking to Julia, and they were trying to make her go away with them."

When these facts were told to Police Captain McDermott, of the Fifth street station, it was a surprise to the police commander.

"I really am surprised at the telegrams," he said. "I have often wondered how these girls were got from their homes. This telegram explains it. I believe these cadets will resort to any practice to make a living without working. What Mr. Ellner says convinces me that now that their traffic in innocent girls, and even children, is prevented, they are making thieves of those girls and are brooding by the thinking. I believe the cadet system is nearly ended, and if I can keep my health I soon will be ended here. These cadets will be where they belong—behind prison bars."

"I have reason to believe that the men on the street talking to Julia, and they were trying to make her go away with them."

When these facts were told to Police Captain McDermott, of the Fifth street station, it was a surprise to the police commander.

"I really am surprised at the telegrams," he said. "I have often wondered how these girls were got from their homes. This telegram explains it. I believe these cadets will resort to any practice to make a living without working. What Mr. Ellner says convinces me that now that their traffic in innocent girls, and even children, is prevented, they are making thieves of those girls and are brooding by the thinking. I believe the cadet system is nearly ended, and if I can keep my health I soon will be ended here. These cadets will be where they belong—behind prison bars."

"I have reason to believe that the men on the street talking to Julia, and they were trying to make her go away with them."